DETAILED ACTION

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1-38 and 68-69 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

Claims 26, 68, and 69 all now recite that the curing of the protective material is done "without depositing a layer of tape over the protective material." Where is this discussed in the specification? Examiner did not find any discussion of tape, and Applicant's remarks do not appear to reference any such teaching in the specification. If the specification does not teach the limitation, then adding the limitation to the claims would be new matter. Also, if claim 1, for example, is intended to encompass depositing the layer both with tape and without tape, as one would assume on reading claim 68, then one would need some sort of written description for this as well. (The scope of the claim cannot be broader than the scope of the disclosure.)
